

Abstract

Woodworking machines are disclosed having cutting tools adapted to cut workpieces. The machines include a detection system adapted to detect one or more dangerous conditions between a person and the cutting tool. The machines also include a 5 brake mechanism having one or more braking components adapted to engage and stop the cutting tool in response to the detection of a dangerous condition.